THE HERALD.

JNO. P. BARRETT, Editor.
WEDNESDAY, SEPT. 12, 1877.

Pro Bono Publico.

There are, in all localities, a class of people who seem to think that everything was created for their especial benefit, and that they are not expected to share any of the burdens and responsibilities of a public nature. To make a town or community prosper, the citizen thereof must work together for the public good, and he who is so selfish, so mean as to refuse to contribute his quota for the general good; but ready to avail himself of the advantages, and gather the fruits of other men's labors, is unworthy the name of a man. His soul is so little, that if placed in the hollow of a mustard seed, filled with water, and allowing it that could swim as fast in proportion to size as a locust, one could run on a railroad; it would take that soul a thousand years to swim across the diameter of that mustard seed. Hartford has whole-souled, public spirited men, but not quite enough of them, and we are sorry to admit, she has several of that class who aim to steal the advantages that are developed and placed in reach by the enterprise of others. We had rather be a Carrion Crow, and subsist on the ravages of an intestine war in our own land, than to feel that we had never assisted in promoting the prosperity and public welfare of the community in which we lived. Everybody should become interested and labor for the good and prosperity of his section of country, by so doing he promotes his own interests as well as that of his neighbors. Those who do nothing for the public good should surely expect no favors from the public, and ought not to receive any. They ought to be allowed to remain in their little shell of selfishness all alone, and patriotic, philanthropic men ought not to intrude upon them in a business way at least. We have none in view in particular, and surely ladies toward no body; but, if this is over to be anything, every man in it ought to see that hereafter at least he is not one of the class wanting in public enterprise.

The only regret we have in not having chosen a member of the next Legislature is, that we wanted to pass a law making it a felony for a man to be ever and eternally croaking about hard times. See a man from any part of the country, and ask him the news, and with an elongated countenance and a croaking voice, he responds—"Hard times, and was a comis." Long faces, peevish grumbling and gloomy brows make hard times. This everlasting cant about hard times, and foreboding of evil for the future, make time harder than they otherwise would. It causes the miser to clutch his purse strings tighter, and it prevents the timid from putting into circulation money that otherwise would be changing hands, and renders business stagnate that would otherwise have an air of prosperity.

Give us men of cheerful, hopeful natures, with confidence in their own strong arms, and times will improve at once. Away with the croaker, ridicule him out of your community. Load your shot guns with cheerfulness, put on a cap of hopefulness, pull the trigger of energy, and give these chronic hard timers a broad side that will wake them up and open their eyes that they may see aright. To conclude, the man who is continually murmuring "hard times" is an enemy to the prosperity and welfare of the community where he is allowed to exist. not live, for such an one has not a sufficient idea of life to know what living is, he merely exists.

Hon. Lyttleton Cook.

Hon. Lyttleton Cook, one of the Representatives elect from the city of Louisville, has large experience as a legislator; is a man of high culture and possessed of a thorough knowledge of parliamentary law; a gentleman of the genuine type, and a scholar; a man, a life-long Democrat true and tried. In a word; he has all the qualities of head and heart necessary to a successful presiding officer. And amongst the many eminent gentlemen elected to the Kentucky Legislature, which is to meet first of January, no one is better capacitated to preside over and dispatch the business of that honorable body than Lyttleton Cook, and we take pleasure in suggesting his name for that highly responsible position.

We clip the above deserved compliment to Hon. Lyttleton Cook from the Glasgow Times, and heartily endorse all that it contains. Among the members elect to the next House of Representatives, we know of no one better fitted by nature and education to preside over that body than the gentleman whose name heads this article. He has every quality of heart and brain to insure popularity, and we would select him as pre-eminently the man at this crisis to grace with ability this honorable position, and we know with his vast fund of parliamentary knowledge and practical good sense, that his rulings would be based upon justice and equality, and that no other selection would give greater satisfaction to the majority of the Kentucky Democracy.

The Prospect for the Democrats
Control the Next Senate
Strengthens.

[Lexington Observer.]

Senator Patterson, of South Carolina, one of the gang of carpet baggers, has come to grief at last. He has been indicted by the courts, which places him between two fires. If he goes back to stand his trial he has a fair prospect to serve the State in the penitentiary, instead of the Senate; if he refuses to go, he will have to stand investigation by a Congressional committee, with a good show of being bounced out of the Senate.

Miss Marie Harris, of Muhlenberg county, is here, visiting her sister Mrs. Brown.

The school is going on. Mr. Harper, teacher, assisted by his wife. There is a good attendance, and great interest manifested by both teachers and pupils.

Mr. H. J. Young has bought lot in this place from Mr. Anderson, of Cynthiana, 2000 feet for $200. Can any of our neighboring towns beat this sale these hard times? I can tell he intends building a brick store house. I hope more of us will awake from our Rip Van Winkle sleep, and build houses like we intended to any here and make a town.

There is said to be a pauper in the vicinity of the Richmond Mines. It has been seen by several citizens, and shot at once. Mr. Thad. Baker has been over there with his dogs, but they refuse to run in, and as there is no sun to him in a hunt without his hounds "let out" he left in disgust.

Jim Barrett assaulted Benigny a few days ago, in the bottom above town, and clubbed him pretty severely over the head. Barrett was arrested and fined $1.

I regret to inform you that James Torrence, of this place, died September 6, at 6 o'clock, after a long illness. He has passed peacefully and calmly away. Failed as fades the leaf. All who knew him loved him. He has left abundant testimony of the power of redeeming love.

We can very plainly see Ziba's tracks all over the "Railway Mail." In fact, we could tell that he was about "that" even if we did not know he was connected with it. You'd better reckon it's a spicyle little sheet, published at No. 80, Fifth street, Louisville.

Bottom Rail Getting on Top.

California went Democratic last Tuesday, and chose a Legislature that will be Democratic on joint ballot by a majority of 38. Thus is another Democratic United States Senator secured.

The following is the official vote of the State for State Treasurer at the August election: James W. Tate, (Dem.) 96,824; S. F. Trahine, (Ind.) 21,018. Tate's majority, 75,806.

The Louisville Exposition opened last week under very favorable prospects. The general feeling is that it will far exceed in interest any of the preceding exhibitions held in Louisville.

The Henderson Reporter has "put on" city airs and sent out a supplement with the last issue. That office must be doing a bank-king business.

Brigham Young, the much married President of the Latter Day Saints, is dead. He was getting quite old; but, strange to say, the large number of wives made widows by his demise, each and every one of them are young widows.

Brigham Young, the Mormon leader, died on the 20th inst. He was born at Whittingham, Vermont, June 1st, 1801, and has been President of the Mormon church since the death of Jn Smith in 1844.

Why don't somebody start the Murphy movement in Hartford? "P't," where are you, that you do not help your name-sake, Francis, in his great enterprise by building one of his Societies here?

The Kieddy motor is about to prove a success after all. A very successful public test was given at Philadelphia recently.

The working men of Louisville re-pledged Blanton Duncan as a leader and his paper as an organ.

Brigham Young was the father of five-six children, and left seventeen wives, sixteen sons, and twenty-eight daughters.

"Had have," is the way the Winchester Chronicle puts it.

Attention Merchants.

Warren S. Tate, the popular and liberal salesman of the great clothing house of Six, Krons & Co., Cincinnati, Ohio, has opened out a complete line of samples of clothing of every variety at the Louisville Hotel, and will remain Thirty Days. Because of my inability to sell except that clothing merchants of Louisville, and in consequence of having had remarkable success in selling in Louisville by sample, the farmers are more productive, the breeds of stock finer, mechanics more active, and every branch of industry and art in better condition, than in sections where such annual meetings are not held.

A little boy of John E. Ferguson was climbing after a squirrel last Friday, and fell about fifty or sixty feet and broke his arm in two places. Quit climbing after squirrel, little boys.

The school commenced at Salem Sept 31, under the control of Miss Sarah Heavner, the number of scholars being twenty-five the first day. Very good for district No. 31.

We want Mr. Rowe to come up and give us a lecture before cold weather comes on.

The handle factory is not a thing merely on paper, but a reality actually here and running. Can hear the buzz of the saws all day long.

Mr. T. Bentley will shortly move his stock of dry goods from Nelson Creek Station to this place, and start business in the house formerly occupied by W. A. Bentley.

Mr. J. Kain will open up a heavy stock of goods in Greenfield about the 25th of September. His stock here will be closed out regardless of cost.

Miss Marie Harris, of Muhlenberg county, is here, visiting her sister Mrs. Brown.

The school is going on. Mr. Harper, teacher, assisted by his wife. There is a good attendance, and great interest manifested by both teachers and pupils.

Mr. John Duncan, formerly editor of the Farmer's Home Journal, has accepted a position as agricultural editor of the Daily Courier Journal. He is a man well fitted for this position. He will also commence the publication of a monthly on the 1st of October, the title of which will be "Farmer's Magazine."

Attention Merchants.

The following sensible article on this subject is so practical and pointed and true, that we clip it from the columns of the Youngman and offer it as our own sentiment in stronger and more terse language than we can express it:

Among the great auxiliaries to the development of a country, a chief agency is found in the annual fair. Nothing contributes more to the social and physical strength of a community, than the annual rivalry invited by these periods.

The exhibition of products of the soil, of live stock, and of articles of manufacture, are all calculated to encourage investments, labor, and genius. The success of one man in any particular branch of industry is sure to impel another man to greater exertion, and society at large becomes the beneficiary. Experience, which is by far the best teacher, has shown that in sections of the country where these fairs have been held for any length of time, the farms are more productive, the breeds of stock finer, mechanics more active, and every branch of industry and art in better condition, than in sections where such annual meetings are not held.

A little boy of John E. Ferguson was climbing after a squirrel last Friday, and fell about fifty or sixty feet and broke his arm in two places. Quit climbing after squirrel, little boys.

The school commenced at Salem Sept 31, under the control of Miss Sarah Heavner, the number of scholars being twenty-five the first day. Very good for district No. 31.

We want Mr. Rowe to come up and give us a lecture before cold weather comes on.

A Dream.

By DUNNI.

I slept and dreamed that life was beauty, I awoke and found that life was duty.

Being weary in body and mind, I threw myself upon my couch and soon Morsus threw his fascinating charms about me and swiftly bore me to the land of visions.

I held life arrayed in all its beauty as the misty veils of the future seemed drawn aside,

I saw many persons wandering o'er the broad fields of space, trying to gather in the flowers of life.

Youthful buoyancy in the horizon of life, is ever decked with golden dreams of beauty; fancy paints upon the canvases of immaturity, glowing colors—but alas, how often is it, that they are never realized!

I saw many persons of radiant being, fair beauty, and happiness. I learned from their countenances, and it seemed as if every thought was pure and happy.

I dreamed that if their fond hopes were realized, they would glide o'er the arcanum of life like the gentle moon beams, shedding rays of love, kindness, and beauty on all surrounding objects.

There is said to be a pauper in the vicinity of the Richmond Mines. It has been seen by several citizens, and shot at once. Mr. Thad. Baker has been over there with his dogs, but they refuse to run in, and as there is no sun to him in a hunt without his hounds "let out" he left in disgust.

Jim Barrett assaulted Benigny a few days ago, in the bottom above town, and clubbed him pretty severely over the head. Barrett was arrested and fined $1.

I regret to inform you that James Torrence, of this place, died September 6, at 6 o'clock, after a long illness. He has passed peacefully and calmly away. Failed as fades the leaf.

Mr. John Duncan, formerly editor of the Farmer's Home Journal, has accepted a position as agricultural editor of the Daily Courier Journal. He is a man well fitted for this position. He will also commence the publication of a monthly on the 1st of October, the title of which will be "Farmer's Magazine."

We can very plainly see Ziba's tracks all over the "Railway Mail." In fact, we could tell that he was about "that" even if we did not know he was connected with

THE HERALD.

Upon Receiving a Heathen Bouquet.

How sweet to know, in life's desert plain,
An oasis nestled 'mid the burning sand;
There flowers bloom, and distract bloom again,
And perpetual summer smiles upon the land.

And there, amid the coarsest leaves,
The fragrant air and gray beryl flowers,
Wander, as a dream, in the golden bower.

The Fair in Cynthiana cleared $1,300.

Let me see if the Ohio County Fair did not beat it. What do you say?

Master Henry McHenry left last week for Louisville, where he will remain for a while as a pupil in the high school.

Mr. T. F. Johnson, of Wilson's Millville, brought in a sample of his timber-mill last week. It is decidedly the best we have seen.

Oh, if you want to wet with sense, just send us in your 50 cents; and have the HERALD sent to you, until this year goes clear through.

Baked pork and beans in case, delicacies and economical for family luncheons, etc., etc.

EDWARDS & FOSTER'S

WANTED—To secure the use of a good stable horse for about two months at a reasonable rate. Good care will be taken of the horse and the use will be very moderate.

JOHN P. BARNETT.

Mr. W. M. Stone, conductor on the train from Cynthiana to Louisville, is one of the most accomodating and attentive conductors we have ever met. He is the right man in the right place.

EDWARDS & FOSTER have just received 1,000 lbs. of bacon.

John K. Williams, here's to you for those excellent cigars.

EDWARDS & FOSTER have just received a full stock of groceries, confectioneries, etc. &c.

Mr. M. McCarty of the Elizabethtown News, is a candidate for Door Keeper of the next Senate.

If you want to cut a sensible paper subscribe at once for your county paper, to January 1st, 1878 for 50 cents.

Mrs. Ellen and Nellie Taylor, of this place, left last Friday morning, to visit relatives in Union county.

J. C. Thomas & Bro's keep on hand the largest and best assort'd stock of saddle, harness, etc. &c. town.

Call and get your new, fine suit from V. P. Arlington, out of his splendid stock of new men's clothing.

BORN—Saturday, September 8, 1877, Florence, infant daughter of Henry and Margaret A. Hart, aged 9 months.

If you want to avoid great peril, subscribe at once for the Hartford HERALD, from now to 1st January 1878 for 50 cents.

Mrs. L. J. Lyon, at the Lyon House and her daughter May, returned home last Saturday from a visit to Cave City, Kentucky.

The election in Maine last Monday, went largely Republican as usual, Connor, still governor by about 8,000 plurality.

The editor, types, and "devil" tender, Jas. T. Moore, clerk of the Hartford House, their thanks for a large roll of very choice Havana cigars.

Our better half is from home now, visiting friends and relatives in the liberty church neighborhood, but until the nights get much longer very suddenly?

Henwick & Nall are receiving a fine lot of clothing direct from manufacturers in Philadelphia, which they will sell for cash. Call and examine them.

That pretty little story on our first page about Clay Crawford and Osman Pasha is all spoiled, as it turns out to be a mistake, Osman being a native of Asia Minor.

Our office was honored by a visit from Miss Sallie Kahn, of Crownell, last week. We found her to be quite a pleasant, agreeable and intelligent young lady.

Mr. J. E. Stevens an old and respected citizen a few miles north of town is quite low with dropsy of the heart. Mr. Ed. B. Ellis is still very low, with but little hope of recovery.

The serenading party of last Tuesday night return their thanks to Miss Maggie King for the hospitable manner in which they were treated—choice apples and pears, cream and peaches, cake, Kelly Island W—well, this is sufficient.

Mr. Henry Small of the famous Trade Palace, here for Louisville last Wednesday. Uncle Henry is the jolliest old man alive. He left our handsome young relative, Mr. George Williams behind the counter while he was gone. He returned yesterday.

The Apostles of the Mormon Church, and J. W. Young and D. W. Wells, late censors of Brigham Young, have held a caucus with the Lord, and according to their published circular, the Lord has named John Taylor as Brigham's successor.

Mr. Henry Harrison, of Calboun, Ky., representing the firm of T. J. Welles & Co., called to see us last Saturday and left his name and money for a copy of the HERALD. We hope that many of our old friends of McLean county will follow suit.

We are again for the hundredth time probably, placed under obligation to Mr. H. W. Wells, of Millwood. This time, as once before, it is for a box of nice, juicy, luscious, ripe peaches. We have no language adequate to express our appreciation of these little favors, and kindnesses we have from time to time received at his hands. His soul is as large as a meeting house. Many, many thanks Bro. Wells. May you live long and die happy.

THE TRAIN ANIMALS.

A characteristic feature of the European Show is the trained animal department. It embraces the greatest number and variety of trained animals ever seen in any one exhibition, comprising trained lions, tigers, leopards, hyenas, giraffes, elephants, camels, horses, ponies, dogs, goats and monkeys, all of which have been brought to a degree of perfection bordering on the marvelous. Exhibits at Rochester, Saturday, September 22d. Hartford, Monday, September 24th, Liverpool, Tuesday, September 25. Do not miss the opportunity of seeing it.
